G. H. Hutton is Banquetted

On Monday evening a large number of friends of G. H. Hutton, late superintendent of the Government Experimental Station, gathered at the Adelphi where a banquet was given in his honour. The whole countryside was represented by dairymen, farmers and livestock men, who were there to testify to the great assistance which G. H. Hutton had so readily given at all times in the way of improved agriculture and stock raising. The department of Agriculture was represented by the Hon. Duncan Marshall and Mr. H. A. Craig, Deputy Minister; the live stock industry by Mr. W. F. Stevens provincial commissioner the Dairy Industry by Mr. C. Marker, the Government expert. Covers were laid for sixty guests and the arrangements reflected great credit upon the management. Mayor Morrison acted in the capacity of Toast Master, and in a few well chosen remarks, eulogistic of the guest of the evening, called on N. E. Carruthers and A. M. Campbell to make a presentation, and Mr. Hutton was handed an illuminated address, travelling bag and gold mounted cane.

In proposing the toast "The Workers in Experimental Farms," Mr. Craig just read a resolution expressive of the warmest appreciation of the work of G. H. Hutton, from the executive of the U. F. A. in Edmonton. He spoke of his own personal knowledge of the great ability and work of Mr. Hutton extending over twenty years, and said that it was only the tardiness of the government in coming to terms that had lost for the Dominion one of its most valuable experts in the realm of agriculture as a government official. But he went glad to know that the province would still be his home. Lacombe might well be proud of the fact that from being the smallest a few years back, this experimental farm had now grown to the largest and most important in the Dominion, brought about entirely by the indefatigable labors and the genius of the guest of the evening. Mr. Hutton in replying, expressed his appreciation of the handsome gifts as well as of the kindly sentiments voiced by the speakers. He gave an interesting history of the establishment of the Experimental Stations by the government, particularly the one in which he had been superintendent for the past 17 years. He said that for fertility of soil and general climatic conditions, Lacombe was without a peer for agricultural pursuits. An showing the value of the farm to the whole community in the matter of expert advice he stated that the office was receiving from 4 to 6000 letters per year, containing enquiries upon every subject connected with agriculture. Mr. W. F. Stevens followed and urged upon the district the necessity of increased production and improvement in the quality of livestock. This was supported by J. Sharpe and P. A. Switzer; C. F. Damron introduced the subject of Dairy farming and C. Marker gave an interesting account of its wonderful development in the province. W. F. Puffer paid a warm tribute to Mr. Hutton whom he characterized as one of Alberta's best farmers and best citizens whose work has been abundantly recognized and appreciated by the provincial government. Hon. Duncan Marshall made the speech of the evening, he dealt with the great and urgent need of meat in France and detailed the general stock situation in Europe. The necessity of increased production and improvement in the grade of stock in this country was insisted upon in order to meet the demands of the market overseas. An order had recently been made in Canada for the immediate dispatch of 10,000 good steers, and it was increased production and improvement in the grade of stock in this country was insisted upon in order to meet the demands of the market overseas. A. M. McDonald, Dr. Sharp, and Rev. Hollingsworth replied to the Toast of the Professions; and that of the New Farmer, was spoken to by Dr. Simpson, and Mr. J. McCaig. The proceedings terminated by the National Anthem.

We also notice that of the directors present there were from Lacombe, two from other points, and Lacombe was therefore in a position to outvote the others on the question. We would like to know what is the idea in holding our sale at Red Deer, and why such a thing should be considered. The horse stealing case in which Welton, Richardson and Curtis were deeply interested for the past three or four weeks, came to an end on Saturday, when Herbert Welton was found guilty of stealing the horses from J. L. Walters, and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary. Chas. Curtis was dismissed, as was R. Richardson, but the latter was immediately arrested again charged with stealing a horse and colt belonging to John Ellis. His trial on the charge will likely come up this week. The result of this case will have the effect of clearing up a lot of uncertainty among people living south-east of Lacombe, who have in the past few years lost a great number of animals, and while the police do not think they have got the ringleaders of the bunch, they think that from now on a stray animal will stand a little better chance of getting lost to its owner than formerly. And in the meantime police will continue their hunt for clues as to

IS BOB GIBSON A GRAFTER?

Dear Editor, Two weeks ago, I sent you a communication re two items charged by two of the councillors of District 399. My only object in sending it was to call the attention of fellow ratepayers to what looked to me to be a piece of graft on the part of these two councillors, and seeing to date they have not seen fit to offer any explanation, am I to understand that part of their expense account was graft? It looks like another case pretty much along the line of a graft scheme put over Div. 2 by Coun Melennan last summer. In that case, instead of giving the residents an opportunity to pay their taxes in labor as has always been done heretofore, he hired a bunch of his supporters, paid them a dollar a day more than was paid for the same class of work in other parts of the district and to make sure that part of the money would be kept in his own family he put his own team, his boy and a nephew who was visiting, in the bunch, and although this act disqualified him from sitting as a councillor, I am sorry to say that the council passed and ordered the bill to be paid. This matter was kept as quiet as possible, at the time by the council, and no doubt they would prefer to have nothing said about it now, but I think it fair to the ratepayers at this time that this matter be made public. Jan. 23. J. Barron.

Letter from Mac Friswell.
Mr. and Mrs. Friswell this week received a letter from their son Mark Friswell. It is most interesting, and needs no explanation.

Duest, Germany.

December 13 1918.

Don't think when you read the heading of the letter that I am a prisoner in Germany, or anything like that. It has been so long since I wrote that you will be thinking something of the like, but we have been on the march ever since I wrote last, and I put off writing thinking that I would soon be at the end of the trip. Now we have nearly finished the trip, and there is a table in the barracks here, so I will not put it off any longer.

Since we started out to follow up the retreating Germans after the armistice was signed, we have covered a little over 450 kilometers—not a bad walk when one has to carry all his earthly possessions with him, but I have finished without even a sore foot.

I think when I wrote my last letter to you that I was in a town in Belgium, by the name of Seignin.

It was quite a large town and had large tile industries, and a church 900 years old, which was very interesting, but we didn't stop there long; we were up and away again after resting one day.

The next town we stopped at was Nivelles, which we reached at 4.30 p.m., and we were accorded a great reception by the people of that town. They had triumphal arches built for us to march under, and came out and met us with their bands, and played us in.

In the evening they had a big celebration in the town square, with bands playing and the civies and us joining hands and dancing around like a bunch of wild indians. Here we had a look over a large bunch of guns and planes which the Germans left behind according to the terms of the armistice. Here also they have a fine old church that was of great interest to us, and which had a spire about 490 feet high and of course we had to go to the top of it. It was an awful climb, but when we got up we were well repaid for our trouble, as we could see the country for miles around, and it happened to be a clear day. Here we saw a large bunch of British prisoners, who had been released and were on their way home, and believe me they were pleased, as they would be home for Christmas. Lucky fellows, how we envied them. But I don't think we envied them a few months ago. We stopped at Nivelles two days, and then started counting cobble stones again. We stopped that night in a small village by the name of Lillie, and up and away again the next morning at 7 o'clock arriving at Maux that day at 2. That night another sergeant and myself stayed at a house where a young Belgian girl lived, and her lover came in to see her.

It amused us greatly to see them making love before the old folks.

Of course we couldn't understand what they said, but as to holding hands and speaking with their eyes, no one could misunderstand that (Ah, to be young again.) We stayed at Maux one day, and then arrived at the next morning at 5, arriving at Hingdon at 11. Here we were greeted with more flag parades by the people. I saw what is known as an armstrong saw mill —a log is laid across two timbers and one man gets up above and one below, and that is the way they sawed lumber. They could probably saw one thousand feet in as many days. If you could see how far behind the people in this country are you would like Canada better than ever. We stayed here the next day, which was the U. S. Thanksgiving day, but I could not find any turkey in my mulligan. Perhaps one ran through it, but if it did it was on stilts. We moved off the next morning at ten, and arrived at Solier, on the Meuse river, at 12.

The Meuse is a large stream and a large number of barges and pleasure boats were here. We stayed in a chateau owned by the king of the Belgians while we were here.

The rations were held up a day or so while we were here, and one evening I was feeling rather hungry and took a stroll around the town to see if I could locate something to eat. I spied a cake in the window of a store, and three of us went in and each bought a piece and started to eat it on the way home. We had quite a long way to go, but the cake lasted longer than the journey. Say, that was 'some' cake. I had a notion to take a little Belgian girl home with me, but not now. Every time I feel that I am in danger of losing my heart to one of those black-eyed damsels, I think of that cake.

And then I think of the feeds we used to get at some of the chateaux socials and I swear that nothing but a Canadian for mine.

After stopping here two days we moved again, and after marching 36 kils. we arrived at St. Roch at 4 p.m. During the march we passed through some very picturesque country, as here we came to the edge of the Ardennes mountains. The next night we stopped at Posse, and moved off the next morning at 9.30, and arrived at Vielsdorf at 11 p.m. Here we washed the lumber and cleaned up all the equipment, so as to look nice and smart when we entered Germany the next day. The next morning we moved off at 8.30, and crossed the German border at 10.30. This was Sunday December 8th. When we crossed the border the fellows all shook hands with each other and said 'Well, we made it.' That night we stopped at our first German town, a place by the name of Langueville. The next morning we moved off at 6 and arrived at Roerath at 3 p.m. On the march we passed a place where a few few horses had been killed and dressed by Fritz on his retreat. They didn't let any meat spoil, even though it was horse meat. Up and away the next morning at 4, on a muddy road, and arrived at Call at 5 p.m. When we stopped here we were very tired, the Ardennes, and we were not sorry, as it is no joke climbing hills all day with a pack on ones back. When we started in we were very cheerful about it, when we came to a hill we used to say, 'Well, when we go up this one we will have one to go down,' but that didn't last long. Soon we began to talk in a different strain and when we came to a downy road we would say, 'Going down again—that means another sun-of-a-gun to climb.' You see how much depends upon how you look at a thing. But although the trail through the Ardennes would be difficult, it was very beautiful as well. The road twisted around the hills like a corkscrew, until it reached a valley, and then did the same thing to get up again. Sometimes we would be travelling east and in a few minutes we would be going west.

We had to walk about three miles to make one, as the crow flies. Some mornings when we started out the weather would be clear, and the rising sun would paint the summits of the hills in gold, and the slopes and valleys would show the dark green of the spruce and pine, and down in the valley a river would be gleaming like a picture not easily forgotten—With the front end of our column winding around the roads in the valley, and the rear end disappearing among the hills. Or perhaps the morning would be foggy, and the valleys would appear like great lakes, with the front end of the column disappearing under the surface while the rear would appear to be coming out of the clouds. Well, I wrote that in the morning I left you along to Eushurben, where we made our next stop. But anyway the next day at 7.30 a.m. we left the 27th kil, passing to the left of Bonn, and went to a town where students come to finish their education and get their degree. But I am not stopping in Germany to get any degree, I know myself. We arrived at Maux at 3 p.m. Here again we washed the lumber and shined things up for our triumphal crossing of the Rhine. Today we moved off at 11 a.m. and entered Cologne at 2 p.m. It is a lovely city of about 700,000, and remains a great deal of the Rhine at 2.30 this afternoon, and are stopping in the German barracks about 300 yards on the east side. So when you read this letter just imagine me writing it 50 miles inside the German border and across the Rhine. By looking out the window I can see the heights of Cologne, about one half mile distant, and on the other side of the river. Little did I think six months ago that I would be sitting here writing a letter to you tonight. Poor old Arras, where we were doing our fighting then is a long way behind now, about 500 kils. Some advance when compared with 1000 yard advances we used to fight hard for.

I have seen some pretty hard times over here, and put up with a great many hardships, but would feel well repaid for it all if it was not for the dear comrades I have lost, and who are not with us. I was very grieved to hear of poor Ore Ziesle's death. I think I mentioned in one of my letters about his being so lucky. I thought at the time that he had just a nice Blighty as we had not heard of his death for quite a long time after he had written me. I was told he was doing all right. As the lads have all been out seeing town, and have just got back with their experiences, I am afraid I will have to wind up my letter, but I think I have done pretty well, don't you? Yes, I had to make up for lost time. The German people are very civil to RUSSIAN WOLF HOUNDS AT STUD.

Kim and Lord Wroscow Kim M is a litter brother to the Calgary and Vancouver winner. Kim M is extra-large, an all white dog with orange markings. He is certainly a beautiful type of a dog and moreover has a fine disposition. Both dogs are registered in the A. K. C.
The animals are about 34 inches tall.

Lord Wroscow was sired by Kirk Aliz the well known Canadian Champion. He will stand at stud with his mate, Kim M. He is a white dog with black markings, whelped February, 20 1918. He has a long head, thick, deep chest, high arched back and a wonderful body. They are both extra large and undoubtedly will be the means of producing some real high class stock.

Anyone wishing to improve their breed, should visit and see these young dogs. The Russian wolf hound is the swiftest breed on the face of the earth. In every case check must be received before breeding. All visiting bites at owner's risk. The best possible care will be taken, but I admit of no responsibility whatever. Collar and chain must accompany each bitch, whether crated or not. Stud fees on application. Inspection invited. When writing, address.

Bentley Notes

It was our privilege last week to attend the annual convention of the U. F. A. at Edmonton. Nearly 1000 farmers were in attendance, every minute was filled with interest. The questions discussed were of great variety and most of them were dealt with in a thoroughly masterly way. Unfortunately we were only able to take in two days of the convention and the majority of the resolutions were not submitted to the convention until the last day, so we do not know the results of these. There are a few general impressions of which we would like to speak.

President Wood was unanimously re-elected. Mr. Wood is undoubtedly the leading farmer of Canada today and the convention did well to return his leadership. We heard some talk in the corridors that he was not a good chairman because he did not hold the convention down to parliamentary rules of debate. We venture the opinion that President Wood knew the timber he was working with better than any other. Probably half of the delegates had never been at the convention before and doubtless the majority of these knew little about rules of debate. If Mr. Wood had been strict, many would have considered him unjust in his decisions because they did not know the rules as they are properly applied.

We believe the greatest value of the convention is the education which it gives to many delegates from year to year in the value of organization and the enlarging of their horizon. Unfortunately for himself and for his cause the farmer has been too long in learning that his is but a small part of the whole and that the best interests of all he must relate himself to the whole. Several times quite evidently for the good of the farmers as a whole, some delegate would when resolutions were brought forward to the convention which they opposed them because they did not apply in his community. Thus are they learning to think in terms of a brotherhood rather than an individual.

Thursday was almost wholly given over to discussion of the Banking system of Canada. Mr. J. W. Leedy, ex-governor of Kansas who has lived in Alberta for 11 years and given special study to this question, spoke for two hours in opposition to the present system and in favor of small independent state control. He compared the situation in Kansas with Alberta and showed much in favor of the former system. There is one point which Mr. Leedy raised with which we must humbly beg to disagree. He said that the Banks should make loans to farmers without any regard to their honesty. Mr. Brown speaking to this question said that the Banks always loaned to the small farmers if he was industrious and honest and that the Banking business a borrower's character was always the greatest consideration. If Mr. Leedy's idea was adopted we think it would soon knock the foundation from under credit altogether. No farmer would want to deposit his money in any institution which would loan it out to men whose business integrity could not be relied upon. Mr. Brown, Supt. of the Central western Branches, the Canadian Bank of Commerce replied to Mr. Leedy for two hours and a half and he explained many things that the farmer had overlooked before. At time of writing we have not heard what action was taken on the resolution to organize a system of small banks of small capitalization. W. R. Ball gave an address on "How Canada can pay her war debt," which was full of good suggestions. Mr. Ball has been one of the men in the farmers movement that has never received much courtesy or consideration from the U.F.A. He only speaks on what he has studied out and his only fault we think is that he is about ten years ahead of times. We remember hearing him speak on questions ten years ago which the farmers laughed at then, but are passing resolutions to that effect in these days. Some one has always to be a martyr if progress is to be made in the world of men. We think in this connection of James Russell Lowell's poem in which he says:

When we share his wretched crust, Ere her cause bring fame and profit, 'Tis 'tis prosperous to be just;
Then it is the brave man chooses, While the coward stands aside, Till the multitude make virtue.

Of the faith they had denied.
Mrs. McKinney, M. P. P. gave a splendid address on "The farmers opportunity." She said now was the time to get rid of the two fold of autocracy which thrived in Canada, Commercial and Political. The farmers had made a success of the U.F.A. which was educational and the U.G.G. which was commercial. It was now time they should make a success of the non-partisan league (organized independence) which was the opportunity for the farmer to express himself politically.

8 Ottawa St., Hull, P.Q.
"Fruit-a-lives" is certainly a wonder. For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism; being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine but without getting better; and thought I would never be able to walk again.

"One day while lying in bed, I read about 'Fruit-a-lives' the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it. The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-lives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism."

Altogether this was a most successful and inspiring convention and great good should come to the farmers of Don't forget the serial "A Fight For Millions," at the Veteran, 31st.

Whist is the city we purchased that promises to be the most widely read book of the season. This is a book by Hopkins Moorhouse entitled "Deep Furrows." It is the story of the development of the organized farming from the beginning to the present day. It is written in a most interesting style and is full of facts about the struggle of the farmer against the Big interests which every farmer should possess. We will be glad to lend this book to anyone. All you have to do is ask for it.

Don't forget the serial "A Fight For Millions," at the Veteran, 31st. A pocket book with a sum of money in it was found in Bentley last week. The owner may have it by calling at the telephone office and proving his right to it.

The tractor school at the garage last week was a decided success. The average attendance of farmers was 35 and the sessions lasted from Tuesday to Friday.

A meeting of the Curling Club was held on Saturday afternoon when a new schedule of games was arranged with the same clubs and rinks as before. It was agreed to make a special assessment of $5.00 on each member to completely clear off all indebtedness and provide running expenses the remainder of the season.

Mr. John Poling and his family wish to convey to the neighbors and friends, the church and the Modern Woodmen of America, their appreciation of the tokens of sympathy expressed in their bereavement.

Mr. W. W. Whitesell, late of H. M. Navy gave an interesting talk on his experiences in the navy to the Men's Class, Sunday Night.

Mr. C. B. Faulkner, who entered the army last July returned to Bentley on Friday afternoon. He reports some very interesting experiences whilst in the camps of England.

A Lacombe Rink including Messrs. A. M. Campbell, H. G. Morrison, W. F. Graham and N. W. Morrison, visited the local curling rink on Monday, Jan. 26th and succeeded in winning both afternoon and evening games from the local rinks. We have not a list of the local players.

Messrs. Ray Slaughter and C. O'Brien are attending the tractor school in Edmonton this week.

The regular meeting of the Sunset Hill local No. 1 U.F.A. was held in the Sunset Hill Schoolhouse on Jan. 25th at 8 p.m. After the regular order of business was attended to one of the delegates to the annual U.F.A. convention in Edmonton gave a very interesting report of the Farmers Movement. He said that the farmers were organized now from coast to coast and the government had begun to recognize their strength. In a very short time the farmers, organizations and the returned soldiers will be united for progressive legislation in Canada. When this happens it is not hard to predict many changes in conditions.

After the delegates report was given, the local decided to hold a debate every month midway between the regular meetings. The first debate will be held on Feb. 8th at 8 p.m. Subject will be as to which are most profitable—Beef or Dairy Cattle. The debate will be carried on according to the regular rules of debate and speakers limited as to time. Anyone interested is cordially invited to attend.

It is worth noting that some of the men and women at the last meeting came more than nine miles to attend. This is the kind of encouragement that the officers like and will help them to continue their efforts to make the local a live concern. A vote of thanks was tendered Messrs. Alfred and Edward Haastadt for attending the convention as delegates and for the splendid report given. The officers and directors of this live local announce that they are prepared to give any assistance they can to the farmers of any part of the valley to organize U.F.A. locals or in any other way they can. This local has been organized for two years now and has a very good knowledge of the farmers movement, but they are open to receive any suggestion which will mean for the betterment of the farmer as an organized body or as individuals. They believe in the old adage "In Union There is Strength."

All the families of the Rainy Creek District are invited to a community evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Surratt on Wednesday, Feb. 5th. An evening of social neighborliness with old fashioned songs is anticipated. Everyone, from grandmother to the baby are expected.

To Joseph Barron
Leduc, Jan. 20, 1919 Editor of Globe; Dear Sir, Mr. Barron, I am surprised to notice that in your letter with regard to the fees of Councillors Gibson and McEwen, you only took one part of the Municipal Ordinance, for if you had not you would not have written the way you did. You are one of those men who will never be satisfied with the work anyone does, and you expect a councillor to give you good roads and attend all the meetings for $60.00 a year. But by luck councillors do not have to deal with men like you, but with the Ordinance. Mr. Barron a councillor has the right to charge for a period of ten days laying out work and inspecting, $3.00 per day and 10c. per mile; he can also charge for attending ten council meetings during the year, and also 10c. per mile going to and from the meetings. In future I would ask you to please read your ordinance before rushing into print with alleged irregularities. You should post yourself up on municipal affairs at the earliest opportunity. In conclusion I may say that I am sorry to acknowledge that you are among our bright French names, as we Frenchmen are a little liberal minded. Yours truly, L. H. Chabotte

AT THE VETERAN

Friday and Saturday Night's program at the Veteran to be the best ever. Eight Reels of Pictures. It is said and never disputed that the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police never fails to get the man once they start after him, if the trail leads around the world. The reason why is strikingly shown in Vitagraph's latest adventure serial, "A Fight for Millions," which will be seen in the Veteran theatre on Fri. and Sat. A troop starts after the outlaws in the first chapter and for fifteen thrilling swift moving episodes it is give and take, first one then the other getting the upper hand, until the troopers finally win out. There are many battles with hard riding and quick shooting, all screened with wonderful realism under the direction of William Duncan who plays the leading male role, supported by Edith Johnson, Joe Ryan and other "Fighting Trail" favorites. Children free.

"Miss No-Account," Life-love-laughter. What qualities in a picture will prove more popular than these at the present time. Little Miss No-Account" is certainly light entertainment. It contains an abundance of wholesome, refreshing comedy, many heart throbs and numerous touches of delightful human interest. The very humanness of the story and the magnetism of Gladys Leslie's personality will rivet attention on the screen from the first.

A good comedy will be included in this program.
